The financial pressure after a crash usually arrives before any compensation does. Medical bills start landing within weeks, income stops if the injury prevents work, and the settlement that will eventually address both is months away at best. A properly built claim covers emergency treatment, hospital and surgical costs, imaging, physical therapy, prescriptions, assistive equipment and any future treatment that is reasonably anticipated. It also covers wages already lost and, where an injury affects long term capacity, reduced earning ability going forward. That last element is routinely undervalued. Someone who returns to work but can no longer perform the physical parts of their job, or who has lost overtime capacity, has suffered a real economic loss that does not appear on any invoice and has to be evidenced properly.

Liens and subrogation claims determine what a client actually keeps. Health insurers, Medicare, Medicaid and medical providers may all assert a right to be repaid from a settlement, and those claims can be negotiated down. Handling them properly frequently makes more difference to the net figure than a small increase in the gross settlement would. PK Law Group documents both the medical and the economic picture in full rather than settling on the bills received to date. Health insurer and provider liens are also negotiated as part of resolving a case, since those directly reduce what a client actually keeps. Treating without health insurance raises a further issue. Some providers will treat on a letter of protection, agreeing to be paid from any eventual settlement rather than billing at the time, which allows necessary treatment to continue when someone cannot otherwise afford it. The balances involved then need negotiating at the conclusion of the case. Arranging that properly is part of what a firm does, and it keeps treatment gaps out of the medical record. Self employed claimants face a harder evidential task on lost income, since there is no employer to confirm missed shifts. Tax returns, invoices, booking records and correspondence with clients all help establish what would have been earned, and assembling that material contemporaneously is far easier than reconstructing it later. Where an injury prevents someone returning to their previous role entirely, vocational evidence may be needed to establish what work remains realistic and what the earnings difference amounts to. That analysis often reveals a loss considerably larger than the Car accident lawyer Kansas City client had assumed. PK Law Group Address: 2015 Grand Blvd, Kansas City, MO 64108 Phone: +1 816-450-4446 FAQ About Car Accident Lawyer Kansas City Is it worth hiring an attorney for a car accident? It is generally worth it where injuries required more than a single medical visit, where fault is disputed, or where an offer has arrived that does not cover your treatment. PK Law Group offers a free consultation at 2015 Grand Blvd in Kansas City and will tell you plainly if a claim is not worth pursuing. Because the firm works on contingency, there is no cost to find out where you stand. How long do I have to get a lawyer after a car accident? In Missouri the deadline to file a personal injury claim is generally five years from the date of the accident, while Kansas allows only two. In a metro split by the state line that distinction decides cases, so establishing which law governs is one of the first things PK Law Group does. Waiting is still unwise, because camera footage and vehicle evidence disappear long before either deadline arrives. How much does a car accident lawyer cost in Kansas City? PK Law Group works on a contingency fee, meaning nothing is paid upfront or during the case and the fee is an agreed percentage of any recovery. If the case does not succeed there is no fee at all. The structure and the deductions to expect are explained in writing before anything is signed. Call 816-450-4446 to discuss it. Is it better to settle with the insurance company or get a lawyer? Settling directly can make sense for a minor incident with no injuries. Once there is medical treatment involved, the gap between an early offer and the full value of a claim tends to widen considerably. PK Law Group takes over communication with the adjuster once instructed, which ends the direct pressure and removes the risk of an offhand remark reducing the claim. What should you not say after a car accident? Avoid admitting fault, apologising out of politeness, or stating that you are uninjured before you have been medically evaluated.

Adrenaline masks symptoms and any of those remarks will be quoted back later. Exchange details, report the crash so there is an official record, and speak to PK Law Group on 816-450-4446 before giving any recorded statement to an insurer. What should I do immediately after a car accident in Kansas City? Check for injuries and seek medical help, report the accident so a police record exists, photograph the vehicles and the wider scene, and collect witness contact details before people leave. Then get a medical evaluation the same day even if nothing hurts yet. The firm's office on Grand Blvd sits inside the downtown district where many of these collisions happen, and consultations are free. Do I have a case if I do not feel hurt? Possibly. Whiplash typically stiffens over the following 24 to 72 hours and concussion symptoms often build gradually over days. A same day medical evaluation creates the contemporaneous record that links later symptoms to the crash, which is exactly the connection insurers dispute when treatment begins two weeks afterwards. PK Law Group advises every client to be assessed regardless of how they feel at the scene. How long do most accident settlements take? Timelines vary with the complexity of the injuries and how reasonable the insurer proves to be, and rushing to close before the medical picture is clear usually costs money. PK Law Group gives clients a realistic timeline at the outset rather than an optimistic one, and keeps them updated as matters progress. Clients consistently mention that communication in the firm's Google reviews. What if the insurance company says I was partly at fault? In Missouri that does not end your claim. The state applies pure comparative fault, so an award is reduced in proportion to your share rather than barred entirely. Kansas is stricter and bars recovery at fifty percent fault or above. Because those percentages directly control the payout, PK Law Group treats the apportionment argument as central rather than incidental. What damages can I claim after a Kansas City car accident? A claim can cover medical costs already incurred and reasonably anticipated, lost income, reduced future earning capacity, vehicle damage, and non-economic damages for pain and loss of enjoyment. Reduced earning capacity is the element most often undervalued, particularly where someone returns to work but can no longer manage the physical parts of the job. PK Law Group documents both the medical and economic picture in full. What happens if the driver who hit me had no insurance? Uninsured and underinsured motorist coverage on your own policy is designed for exactly this situation and is a standard part of Missouri auto insurance. It also covers hit and run collisions where the driver is never identified. Your own insurer becomes an adverse party once asked to pay, so PK Law Group handles that negotiation on your behalf. Call 816-450-4446. Does PK Law Group offer consultations in Spanish? Yes. Attorney Phillip Strozier is fluent in Spanish and conducts consultations and case discussions directly rather than through an interpreter, which preserves accuracy when describing a collision or reviewing a settlement offer. The office at 2015 Grand Blvd is open weekdays 8am to 6pm with accessible entry and parking. Para una consulta gratuita, llame al 816-450-4446.
