How often should an office be cleaned? There is no single answer. A two-person insurance agency in Cave Spring has very different needs from a busy professional building near downtown Roanoke with dozens of staff and a steady stream of clients. The Happy Housekeepers, through its Corporate Clean division, offers an office cleaning service with daily, weekly, bi-monthly and monthly schedules so every business can choose the get more info frequency that fits.

Matching the Schedule to the Building

Daily service suits high-traffic workplaces. Medical facilities, offices with public reception areas and buildings with shared restrooms tend to need attention every day to stay presentable and hygienic. Trash builds up quickly, restrooms need sanitizing and floors near entrances collect grit, especially in wet or snowy weather. A daily visit keeps those problems from ever becoming visible to clients.

Weekly service is a good fit for smaller offices with lighter foot traffic, where staff handle basic tidying and a professional crew takes care of the deeper work. Bi-monthly and monthly options work for spaces used occasionally or for businesses that want a periodic reset on top of their own upkeep. Every Corporate Clean contract is customized, so the frequency and the task list both reflect how your building is actually used.

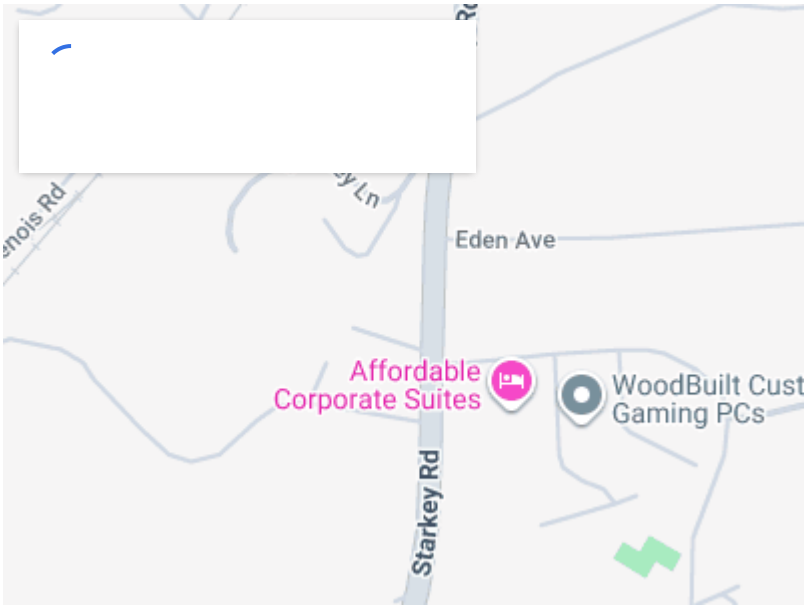

Whatever the schedule, the core tasks stay consistent. Crews dust furniture and horizontal surfaces, vacuum carpets, vacuum and mop hard-surface floors, remove trash, sanitize bathrooms and phones and dust window coverings. Phones and shared desk equipment are among the most touched objects in any office, and sanitizing them regularly is a small step that makes a big difference during cold and flu season in the Roanoke Valley.

Corporate Clean has been operating since 1986, when the company expanded from residential work into offices. Employees are trained by the company, a supervisor is always on call, and all chemicals and equipment are supplied. The company can also help arrange suppliers for restroom and kitchen paper products. It is licensed, bonded and insured, with BBB accreditation since 1993 and an A+ rating.

Schedules can change as your business does. If you add staff, open to the public on more days, or take on a busier season, the office can increase visits. If things slow down, the frequency can be scaled back. That flexibility saves money without sacrificing standards.
